

Two young girls are looking at a map of India with games such as this one from a new series of games. This one, Indian Pow Wow, is played with stand-up cutouts of authentic Indian figures, an inlaid puzzle map showing the areas of Indian culture, and a booklet about the American Indian.

Harbor to Offer Cost Accounting

A class in cost accounting will be offered in the evening division during the fall semester at Harbor College, it was announced today by Carmen Marinella, chairman of the Business Division.

Tom Graham, of Space Technology Laboratories, will conduct the class which meets in Harbor College's new business building on Wednesday evenings between 6:30 and 9:30, starting the week of Sept. 16.

Graham holds a Bachelor's degree in Science and a Master's degree in Business Administration from UCLA. He has more than 10 years' experience in the area of financial planning and control.

The course includes a study of cost accounting procedures and practices. General factory accounting, process costs, job order costs, budgets, expense and overhead distribution, by-products and joint-products, and standard costs are all considered.

"Cost accounting has become an indispensable management tool in the very complex and competitive nature of today's business operations," states Marinella.

"Consequently, this course should be of considerable value to businessmen who are interested in effective cost control, as well as to those who wish to prepare for a career in accounting," he adds.

Applications for admission to the fall semester are being accepted now at the Admissions Office of the college. Deadline for filing an application for the fall semester is Friday, Sept. 6.

Gift Wrap Your Books For School

Brown paper covers for school books are as out-of-date as last year's lessons.

The popular trend, according to stylists of The Papercraft Corp., is to cover books with colorful giftwrap papers — one color for each subject. Some young scholars, displaying grown-up fashion awareness, are even covering their textbooks to match their favorite school outfits. Occasionally, too, it is possible to determine out-of-school interests by a glance at in-school books. Horse lovers are going in for horse papers, circus-admirers use scenes under the big top, while new-to-schoolers show an unsurprising preference for nursery themes.

Covering books is an admirable practice that parents would do well to encourage. It not only acts as a buffer against the slings and arrows of outrageous wear, but inspires the owner with a valuable sense of property protection.

With the aid of a new tape, covers are fun to make, quick to fix, and easy to change as interest or wear dictate. Handwritten labels can also be slipped in with this permanent, almost invisible tape.

In addition, this principle also could be applied to pencil boxes, photograph frames, and a variety of otherwise plain and uninteresting objects.

Discussion Clubs Now Underway

Questions concerning many of the problems facing man today are currently under discussion in the 104 Great Books Discussion groups throughout the Los Angeles area.

The discussion program is now entering its 16th year and more than 1,500 people, in groups of 10 or 15, are active in the Los Angeles vicinity.

No educational requirements are listed for joining a group. Trained volunteers serve as discussion leaders — asking questions rather than lecturing — to stimulate discussion.

Among works recently discussed are the Bible, the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, Plato, Shakespeare and Mark Twain.
